MANIAC WITH RAZOR SHOT BY POLICEMAN

Staten Island Man Drives Family From Home After Slashing His Throat.

Frederick Hood, No. 46 State Street, West New Brighton, Staten Island, according to a police report, drove his family from their home with a razor early to-day after slashing his throat and abdomen in a fit of insanity, attempted to cut a physician who was called to attend him, and was finally dropped with a bullet wound, after threatening a policeman with a carving knife. At the Staten Island Hospital it was said he may die.

While Dr. Horace D. Bland of No. 1010 Castleton Avenue, was attempting to sew up Hood's wounds he broke away and recovered his razor, chasing the physician from the house. Patrolman William J. Sheehan was attracted by the commotion and shot Hood in the thigh.

Members of his family said Hood had been a victim of influenza and that he had been acting queerly for several days.
